How To Help

How To Help

Thank You for Volunteering to Read LEF Scholarship Applications

On behalf of the thousands of LISD students who annually submit scholarship applications to LEF, thank you for dedicating your time to make sure this program is a success.

Scholarships are a major part of LEF's mission with more than $305,000 awarded in 2022 alone. The impact of this process is felt far and wide; some scholarships follow students to universities in Seattle and Massachusetts while 73% stay in the state of Texas. For more information about the importance of what you are doing, check out the history of scholarships and teacher grants on our About page or watch this short video of the smiles LEF has brought to students and teachers over the years.

To help you navigate the application scoring process, we've collected a series of resources for you below. Should you have questions after reviewing the training material below, please reach out to Sherah Robinson, Programs and Outcomes Coordinator, at robinson@lisdef.org.

All applications must be scored by 11:59 pm of January 30.

Thank you and remember, the stories of achievement and grit you are about to read demonstrate the remarkable nature of the next generation. Be inspired, have fun, and know that you are building a community of advocates who, like you, champion education.

High school was tipping the balance of my life as my responsibilities started to pile up. I was no longer able to meet up with my friends as often, and I started to feel troubled. Spending time with my friends was a highlight of my day. My friends, who I had been close with since sixth grade still supported me just as they had back then, and just because we couldn't always meet up, that didn't change. I could handle my workload with their support even when I wasn't with them physically, and years down the line, I hope

Scoring Step #2:

Read the Essays and score each essay using the rubric on the next page.

Every scholarship applicant is asked to answer these two exact same questions.

Essays

Some students have a background or story that is so central to their identity that they believe their application would be incomplete without it. Please share your story.

I move my arms aimlessly in the dark until I feel the soft fibers of my carpet between my fingers. A low sigh of relief leaves my lips as I slowly move my hand up the side of my wooden nightstand until I feel its cool brass handle and open the drawer. My fingers brush past papers and scattered Yu-Gi-Oh cards until they find a childhood friend. "I found it," I think as I lift the flash-write about this student.

Comments

Comments are VERY IMPORTANT and REQUIRED. Your chair reviewer will read every comment you write about this student. This is where you can comment on any "Additional Essay" questions or "References".

If you feel strongly about a student or there are important things you want the chair reviewer to know about, write it here. For example, you could write that the student started their own business or their mother has passed away. You could also write a few short sentences about why you think the applicant is worthy of a scholarship. All comments are confidential.

SCHOLARSHIP REVIEWER TIPS

- Please read a few scholarship applications before you start scoring for the first time.
- It is best to review the entire scholarship application to familiarize yourself with the applicant before you get started scoring. This way, you will get a full picture of this student and who they are.
- Take the student's entire application into consideration when scoring. If they wrote that they were involved in something in their essays, then include that in the score you give them on the activities section.
- It's helpful to score each application with a fresh perspective, so if time allows, try to score five applications at a time with a brief pause in between batches. Doing so will allow you to stay consistent throughout the scoring process.
- References are not required, they are optional. Do not worry if a student does not have a reference.
- You can log out and back into the system as many times as you would like until you are finished scoring. You do not have to read and score all of the applications at once. You can even go back and edit scores. Make sure to save your progress before you log out!
- You have until 11:59 pm on January 31 to score applications.
- There is NOT a final way to submit your scores to LEF. The system will save all of your scores.
- Look over all of your applications to make sure you didn't forget to enter a score.
- You are welcome to email Sherah Robinson (robinsonsl@lisd.net) to let her know if you have any questions about the scoring.
- Please use Chrome, Firefox or another modern browser. Internet Explorer is not supported and will receive an error.

If you are a returning reader, it will refresh your memory. If you are a new reader, it will help you while scoring the applications.

SCORING RUBRIC FOR SCHOLARSHIP ESSAY QUESTIONS

The essay rubric is a guideline – each essay answer is worth a maximum of 10 points. Please use this when you score every essay. This will keep your scores consistent for all the students.
